“ I wrote a poem of the day that you passed and the day of your funeral. I still will never be over the fact that I lost my best friend.

And got that a new anger that came
I hoped and I expected, downed in San Jose,
liking a light job,
Spending in a stolen birthday
Going neighborhood, Corle 34,
I remember your name,
The just the make
Announcing your death
"Was this a prank?"
My mind first went to denial
Hoped it wasn't what she meant
I had to ask, if you really were gone
She said "yes, I'm so sorry she's dead"
I sent my condolences and went to your home

over seven, seven seasons, seven
I remember you and her so close, like you I had been glued
You never left your sister at home,
We, all 3, were anywhere, even now,
I know that, in her life
You were the one she loved most,
I can't even follow the pain,
The grief that haunts her, like a ghost,
The nephew you kissed her with
Now without his amazing mother
He'll never know your love,
Feel your growing love,
Have a deep conversation,
A mother who he could trust
Who could be his father substitute.

in front of the church doors,
Getting out of my car
My body shifted course,
Showering, heavy, my gained weight
Withholding tears for as long as I can
Your voice in my head told me to not be afraid
As I studied my legs
Told my friends, no time to wait
The service was starting
I can't be late.

See you, casket closed, laid at rest
Make up was done like you'd do it
You were beautiful, the children,
Till a deep heart shatter,

You came over to my dad's
And stayed the night
After you and your mom
Got into a fight
You walked all the way over,
Not even out of breath,
When you walked in,
grilly closing the door,
You had a smile you still kept
Despite what happened back home
You were laughing and seemed happy
You still were able to glow
We'd have to LL pop
We'd cry, laugh and joke,
We would talk a bit.

Wiggling tightly, hard to pull away
They told me that they loved me
I said I love you guys too,
I didn't want to walk away
When I had to sit back down,
And drink away their sentence
I had to take a second
Breathe, and come back to reality
I sat down at my chosen place
My mind couldn't focus
My hands shook, the shatter grew
My eyes didn't know where to look
I kept searching for you
I still missed that in the casket
That was placed in front to view

“ It's been nearly 3 years and still you pop up on my mind so much. I remember listening to lil peep and you coming over with your sister all the time in HS, we had so much fun and you were like a sister to me. I will never have a friend as amazing as you ever again.

“ Hey kamora my 21st birthday is coming up. Around this time of year i get really sad. I remember you always making my birthdays special. Like when you surprised me at my door step with presents and turning on birthday music from your moms car in my driveway and turning up the volume hella loud so then my neighbors could hear😂 now that I'm older adulthood sucksss. I've been working at Walmart for almost a year now. My birthday is coming up it won't be the same without you. I hope you're still watching over me, I think of you almost all the time. I love you and miss you☐

“ Dear Kamora.

Everyday gets a little harder knowing you're no longer here with us. You impacted a lot of people especially me. You and your family have always been there for me and my sister Sarah.

Every memory I have of you always makes me laugh and smile. You're the best friend I ever had.

Words couldn't even express how perfect you were. You were the best friend, the best sister, the best daughter, and the best mother anyone could ask for. You blossomed to be a beautiful young woman.

I will miss all the times I had sleepovers at your house and would stay up late making each other laugh and prank calling people. I will miss our little adventures together. I will miss all the times you would make me watch your favorite anime tv shows. I will miss how we use to face time each other everyday before school and you would help me do my makeup and make each other laugh and etc. There is just so much I'm gonna miss.

A few things I'm really gonna miss is your laughter, your smile, and your hugs.

Kamora always made me feel confident in my self, always made me feel loved, always brought a smile to my face if I was feeling sad, Kamora always made me feel comfortable and never judged me. I miss how close we were.

Not a day goes by that you aren't on my mind.

Rest in peace Kamora, I love you and I miss you deeply ☐

“ Oh Kamora... I remember the 1st time we met you... you had just found out you were pregnant... I handed you my baby and said enjoy... and you did lol... I miss when you, your mom n Kimmie and I would hang out and laugh and talk... you'd curl up on my couch with a bowl of cereal N a blanket... and I thought it was so cute how comfortable you were... I'm still in disbelief that you're gone... so young... you will always live through your son... rest in peace

“ To My lil Sis:

There's not one day that goes by without a memory of you that crosses my mind. It hurts to say I took for granted the time we had together, I would never have thought my time with you would be cut short, but the memories we do have I will always cherish. The last time we spent together you were learning how to jump start a car. lol 😂 and we shared some laughs with Junior. That was the last time I got to hug you and say I LOVE YOU. 🥹 we (you,me ,Kimmy)always had each other to vent to, joke around. When I depended on you to do something , you did it. Heyy what are lil sisters here for 🤪. We were pregnant at the same time and you always asked for advice. You are a great mother and sister. I love you so much and I will take of my Nephew as if he were my own. I promise I'll do what I can for my Nephew, your baby boy. Your dorky laugh, your funny jokes will always be remembered. I will live life to the fullest. I love you lil sister and one day we all will meet again.
