“ Vanessa and I used to drive our non Spanish speaking friends crazy and play songs in Spanish at parties and belt them at the top of our lungs. Then we'd replay the same song and belt it just as loud but sing over it with an English translation so our friends would understand what the words meant. They didnt ask for us to do the translated version we just wanted them to understand how good the song was lol. Our friends would laugh at us and roll their eyes but we didn't care and did it anyways. Sometimes we were slightly off on how each one of us was translating it but we got super into it and would laugh and laugh. I'll always remember those times. Sending love to family friends. Vanessa was special and she will always be remembered

“ I’ll never forget the first time we truly reconnected as adults after high school. It was July 18, 2024, and we met at Alum Rock Park for a hike. We both wanted to get back on our fitness journey, to move, to breathe, to feel the sunshine again. From the very first steps on that trail, it felt so refreshing to have so much in common and to share such an instant, genuine connection. Conversation flowed so easily with you. You were always empathetic, always kind, always ready with thoughtful advice that made me feel understood.

That day became the start of our weekly hiking tradition, a time where we could escape the noise of life, clear our minds, and just be ourselves. I knew in my heart it was the beginning of something beautiful, and I was right.

I’ll miss you forever—my Selena and Britney-loving friend, the one who always wanted to karaoke and dance the night away. Thank you for the laughter, the talks, the adventures, and the countless memories I’ll hold close for the rest of my life.
